Observations of Teaching, Learning, and Assessment

Support for Landex Members providing validated, joint or independent observations; available to support both graded and ungraded observations with the specific aim of improving teaching, learning and assessment practices. Landex understands that each member has very different individualised systems for quality assurance and as such the use of Landex observation service can provide:

An external, impartial and objective view of the quality of teaching, learning and assessment practices supported by detailed and timely written and verbal feedback / reports for individuals, teams and or managers to aid potential development.

Validated or joint observations enhance consistency, which might otherwise be difficult to achieve with large team of in-house observers. These can be used to increase the robustness and validity of internal judgments, or to simply support new and or less experienced members of the observations team.

This service will be tailored to your institutional needs. In order to get the most from this service please allow time either between observations or during the course of the day for feedback to observees.
