Excellence in Tutorials – making the most of the ILP

Excellence in tutorials supports personal tutors and those delivery staff responsible for supporting learners' development of individual learning plans which are challenging, realistic and aspirational.

The 2015 common inspection framework incorporates the new judgement on 'personal development, behaviour and welfare' whereby good and outstanding judgements will be borne out of evidence that learners are; self-confident, self-assured and equipped for life in wider society and modern Britain. Highly effective tutorials and ILP's can support the necessary culture of high aspiration.

This highly interactive half day workshop supports tutorial staff to plan for effective tutorials that encourage learner empowerment and support learners in reaching their maximum potential.

A half day CPD day for staff responsible for conducting 1-1 tutorials and developing individual learning plans with learners, incorporating:

- Identification of what makes an excellent tutorial and how this relates to the 2015 CIF expectations for learners to become driven and autonomous within their own learning.
- Examination of the important components of a 1-1 tutorial and how to meet both learners and institutional (audit) needs and how this good practice might be measured in the 2015 CIF
- Consider approaches to increasing learner autonomy through the tutorial and ILP process
- Effective use of learning records to support the setting of targets in ILP's that are SMART yet aspirational and supports the development of self-assured, self-confident learners
