

Arboriculture, Forestry and Countryside Lecturers CPD Event

Click here to get a booking form

Landex

Land Based Colleges
Aspiring To Excellence

Date & time:
21st March 2017

10:00 – 16:30

Cost: £150 per delegate

Venue:
Myerscough College

Facilitator:
Lynn Hart,
Quality Manager
Landex

Who should attend?

Lecturers and course leaders delivering arboriculture, forestry and countryside management courses. Particularly relevant to those delivering in Further Education (levels: Entry – Lv 4).

Why is the event needed?

This event will offer staff opportunities to share practice in the three complimentary areas of Arboriculture, Forestry and Countryside to improve the use of estate and curriculum time to offer learner the best possible experience.

Benefits include knowledge exchange via disseminating projects, technical updates from industry, staff are encouraged to openly share their knowledge on resources, funding opportunities and opportunities for learners to broaden their experience.

Key aims of the event:

With a new suite of qualifications in these key curriculum areas. development pipeline, City and Guilds will provide an update on the new technicals and their assessment. Myerscough College staff will share their research and experience in providing teaching and learning within the state of the art arboriculture facilities.

Growing health and safety concerns across the Agriculture and Forestry industries will be addressed during a practical workshop on managing and overcoming risks in-situ.

Introduction to key speakers and topics:

Dr Andrew Hirons, Senior Lecturer in Arboriculture and Urban Forestry Myerscough College:
Urban forest resilience through species selection.

Dr Duncan Slater, Senior Lecturer in Arboriculture Myerscough College:
Tree structures and stability

Belinda Esdale, Technical Advisor - Land | Industries and Product Team, City and Guilds:
update in relation to qualification changes and assessment strategies

Andrew Taaffe Head of Greenspace and Creative Studies Myerscough College:
Health and Safety Standardisation Workshop; managing and overcoming risks

To book your place at this event, please complete the attached booking form and return to paulmurphy@landex.org.uk. For more information about the event, contact the Landex office on 01604 892650 or visit our website www.landex.org.uk