Who should attend?

Animal Management leaders and practitioners -This event is ideal for teachers, lecturers and programme leaders who want to develop their subject knowledge as well as engage in discussions relating to curriculum changes and the impact on teaching, learning and assessment.

Why is the event needed?

The event will focus on addressing some of the key issues and challenges that are currently affecting the sector. By bringing together Animal Management practitioners to share current research, alongside input from industry experts.

Speakers will share experience around delivery of technicals in 2017/18, as well as hearing from Vicky Skinner who will be able to update delegates on T-Level development.

There will be a focus on planning resource development to meet the changing qualification landscape, as well as how colleges can best use digital technology to enhance curriculum.

There will also be the opportunity to network and engage in relevant topical discussion with a range of delegates from the sector.

Introduction to key speakers:

Vicky Skinner – Chair of T-Level Employer Panel, Animal Management – Update on T-Levels

Claire Powell – Solihull College and University Centre – The use of digital technology to enhance the curriculum and for use in the marketing and promotion of Solihull College's animal provision.

Catherine Lloyd and Carl Groomsbridge – Bedford College – Animal resource development and planning for future qualification demands.

Derby College – The Animal Management Team will share their strategies for successful delivery of animal management technicals.

Topical discussion - Implications of changes to Animal Welfare Act.
